

CWAM Club Sunday January 22nd

Roger Barratt writes

A chilly start to the day thinned the numbers out a little however there were still plenty of bikers who turned up for training or just for a chat over tea and coffee and biscuits.

Having not been able to attend the CWAM Annual Dinner on Friday night Andy Spencer probably thought he had missed out on his ten seconds of fame however he hadn't - he was presented with The Group Award for his outstanding contribution to CWAM to warm applause. Andy graciously dedicated his award to the much loved former CWAM observer Dylan Rogers who passed away recently.

With formalities over, several keen associates went out with their dedicated observers which left an enthusiastic band of seven wanting to go for a ride out.

After a little negotiating Roger offered a short ride of around an hour so that no-one got too cold and promised to stick to the major roads. However, once we had set off the lure of the countryside proved too much for us and we covered several villages around South Warwickshire before ending with welcome hot drinks at Skylark Fields Farm near Daventry.

A pleasant morning all round, albeit one for which Damart clothing was invented!

